Ruskin Air Management New Employees

David Fitzpatrick has been appointed Sales and Marketing Director for the three market leading brands that comprise Ruskin Air Management – Actionair, Air Diffusion and Naco.

Stephen Gore is the new Engineering Manager for the Ruskin Air Management production plant at Whitstable. He will be responsible for development, manufacture and testing of the Actionair ranges of fire and smoke dampers and fan coil units.

William Clarke has joined as Technical Manager for Air Diffusion, responsible for product development and technical support.

These high level appointments are part of the group's on-going strategy to widen its technical and sales support platform to prepare the business for further expansion.

New Floor Grille Range Model CDA

New heavy duty grille range supports low energy ventilation

"This new range is designed specifically to support the efforts of building services system designers to reduce the energy intensity of IT-heavy buildings without compromising critical operating conditions."

CDA grilles deliver a market leading airflow of 43 per cent of the free area, which means it can provide airflow to critical areas at higher rates than standard grilles in this class.
